New Formation Produces 200 Barrel Well

With F.M.L.

If I am a little more daft than usual, it may be because most of the past weekend was spent looking at front pages of almost 100 newspapers in a Nebraska Press Association contest.

If you think reading the Sunday papers is a voluminous task, with all the Sunday magazine and ad supplements, read 300 or 400 front pages sometime.

Poor devils will wonder how the scoring occurred. For your information, I used a trusty dartboard and about five or six darts. It's a bit chancey and unpredictable, but it makes a contest a lot more interesting than just going by some standard rating system.

All you do is lay out several front pages of a given paper, side by side with others from other papers. Then you look briefly at each, so you can honestly say you scanned them, before throwing darts at the numbers on the dartboard.

You name the darts, one after each of the papers in the group being judged at the moment, and throw. Whichever number the named dart hits, that's that newspaper's rating.

It is rather awkward, though, when you get lucky and hit more than one bullseye or more than one lesser number, particularly if the papers are considerably different themselves.

You finally discover favorite positions from which to throw: I like the underhand throw, behind the back, which I adapted for tabloid newspaper judging, since they are so different from standard newspaper size like this one.

Overhand, both left and right hand, went well for the full sized sheets. I used two hands for the "centrist" papers, just to be fair about the whole thing.

It really was honest judging. I furnished the dartboard and used Roman numerals just to make the thing a bit esoteric. The darts were made from desk spikes attached to pencil erasers, the kind with little brushes on the ends. Well, they sort of look like darts.

113-113-113

In a year of disclaimers, I deny ever having done what I just joshed about, because someone will believe even that. I only perjure myself in print.

When you are 113, you can plead almost any excuse, because you have outlived anybody who might remember a semblence of the truth.

Boy Scouts Set Annual Fair

Upwards of 200 youngsters and adult leaders from 15 units in the three-county Tejas Boy Scout District will participate in the 1972 Scout Fair from 3 p.m. until 8 p.m. Saturday March 25 at the National Guard Armory in Cameron.

According to George Myers of Rockdale, district chairman, the Scout Fair is a combination of booth demonstrations by Cub, Boy and Explorer Scouts showing the advancement and activity program of Scouting.

"It is the program found in the Scout handbook, laid open to the public through live demonstrations by boys participating in their booth presentations," Myers said. "It's the biggest all-boy show of the year in the Tejas District."

The local Boy Scout District is composed of cities and communities in Milam, Falls and Robertson Counties. J. H. Greene of Rockdale is chairman of this year's Scout Fair.

Each Scout unit will be assigned a 12-foot-long booth for its demonstration or exhibit. Greene said units may decide on a variety of subjects, including model campsites, wood carving, life saving, signaling, compass and map, soil and water conservation, seamanship, forestry, Indian dancing, Indian lore and weather.

Units will be judged on a point basis for exhibit readiness, active Scout demonstration during the show, boys in Scout uniforms, good behavior, proper signs identifying booths and exhibit and general attractiveness and interest to the public.

Greene said first place awards will go to units receiving over 120 points, second place awards will go to those with 90 to 119 points, third place banners will go to units with less than 90 points.

The public is invited, he said. Tickets cost $1, with pre-school children admitted free when accompanied by an adult.

FIREMEN ANSWER CALL

Cameron Volunteer Firemen were called to a car on fire Saturday night at the intersection of Highways 77 and 36. The car belonged to H. C. Tredway and was completely destroyed by fire. The firemen could only extinguish the blazing car to prevent an explosion.

City Council Meets

The city council meeting in regular session Tuesday evening turned down a request for purchase of city property, and agreed to lease other city property for a car lot and mobile home sales lot.

Rev. Hobbs of the Church of Christ had asked to purchase part of city-owned land in the Sledge Addition. Mayor E. A. Perrin quoted from the deed drawn up when the property was deeded to the city, stating that the property was to be used "exclusively for public purposes, especially for the youth of Cameron."

R. J. Woodum was the only bidder for leasing the west end of the property next to the Cameron Public Library. Mayor Perrin said he had heard some objection to the leasing of the lot, but Woodum had agreed to keep the place clean, and not park vehicles close of the highway.

Gene Blake, local businessman and only candidate for mayor, stated that most mobile home sales lots he had seen were unsightly, and he felt the council should reject the bid.

City Atty. Ed Magre said restrictions should be put in the leasing contract.

Council voted unanimously to lease the property.

Two residents appeared before the council and asked that a street light be installed at Jackson and 21st St. Council moved to approve the light.

Mayor Perrin said he had a complaint from Coleman Duncam that the wind had blown liquid from the primer coat being put on Jackson St. on to his camper, car, and house. The council, after a discussion, voted to let the city's insurance pay for cleaning Duncum's property.

The mayor also told of a complaint about hogs running loose in West Cameron, and of the odor from about 100 hogs in the heighborhood. The city attorney said the city could take action if the hogs were declared a nuisance. Council, after discussing the problem, moved that the county health officer investigate the complaint.

The Civic Garden Club in a letter requested the mayor and council to designate April as clean-up month in Cameron. Discussion centered on the fact that a week would be better in view of using the street department crews for pickup, when they are trying to get planned paving done. The council moved to authorize the mayor to plan for a week-long cleanup in April.

Rainmakers Cause California Floods

SAN DIEGO, Cal.

Another rainmaker named Hatfield came back to town the other day, but nobody spooked.

Paul Hatfield didn't come here to make any rain nor to try to collect $10,000 the city refused to pay his brother, Charles, back in 1916.

Paul Hatfield, now 85, came here from Pear Blossom, Calif., to give the San Diego public library some of his late brother's rainmaking gear -- a rain gauge, a scale and a barometer.

Paul also wanted to see the library's collection of his late brother's memorabilia which is on display this month and next in the main city library.

In an interview Paul recalled the time he and his brother were hired by the city of San Diego to make rain and San Diego suffered the biggest flood in its history. The year was 1916 and the two Hatfields were so succesful they were almost run out of town on a rail.

They set up a 24-foot log tower near Morena Reservoir, a few miles east of town, mixed up several batches of their secret chemical formula, set it out in pans on Jan. 5 and waited for it to rain. It rained all right, showers began Jan. 15 and rain filled Morena Reservoir, as the Hatfields promised it would.

"They gave him a year (in the contract with the city) to fill it," recalled Paul Hatfield during this visit. "He (Charles) filled it in 27 days."

The rains continued, inundating the county, sweeping away buildings, washing out 110 to 112 bridges in the county, uprooting orchards, communications and railroad tracks. At least 20 lives were lost when the Otay Reservoir, a few miles south of Morena, burst and the water roared down Otay Canyon.

New Well Drilled By Byron Rose

By Lloyd Albertson

South Milam County, which has oil production from the Navarro and basal Wilcox formations, apparently now will have a new producing formation that was discovered by a recently drilled 200-barrel wildcat.

The wildcat, Byron Rose's No. 1 Herald Hood, was scheduled as an Edwards Lime test permitted to 6,000 feet and spudded early in January. When drilling was around 5,800 feet reportedly circulation was lost and some oil appeared in the slush pits. However, when the hole was drilled on down to permit depth, 6,000 feet, no shows were found.

Pipe was then set by the drilling crew to just below 5,800 feet and the wildcat was "shot" -- perforated -- at that depth. The well then began producing oil, reportedly at the rate of well over 200 barrels a day.

The two hundred barrel a day figure for Rose's new well is double or more than that of any top producing wells in the Cherokee Navarro and Milbur Fields where some excellent records have been chalked up. So far as known it sets a new record for Milam County.

Potential test, if one has been run, has not yet been reported for the wildcat.

The No. 1 Hood is thought to be producing from the Woodbine or possibly the sub-Clarksville formation. The Woodbine is well known in north and East Texas where it is a good oil-bearing formation. However, it was not thought by geologists to extend into the Milam County area.

Rose's wildcat also reportedly had shows in the Poth, a formation similar to the Wilcox, at around 2,000 feet, and in the Navarro at approximately 3,500 feet when being drilled in search of the Edwards.

Attempts have been made by operators to locate the Edwards Lime, which is a prolific producing formation in some parts of Texas, ever since D. H. Byrd, the Dallas independent, began the search back about 1947 in the Gause area. There have been several near - misses, but no completions in the elusive formation. Rose's wildcat was just the latest try to find the formation.

Location of the Rose No. 1 Herald Hood is on a 320 acre lease in the John Williams Survey and drillsite is 2,070 feet southwest of his No. 7 Ray Woods, a shallow oil well in the Cherokee Navarro Field near Milano.

Rose's discovery apparently has triggered some increased leasing in the county. A lease man, Sam Evans, reportedly has acquired about 2,500 acres in leases in the Hanover and Gause area. And representatives of Shell Oil Company and Pan American were said to have been in the county recently.

A seismograph crew also reportedly was doing some "shooting" in the Jones Prairie area.

Byron Rose's Hood discovery is not the first time he has made history in the Milam oil patch. Rose is believed to have drilled the first successful well in the Milano area when he brought in his No. 1 and No. 2 Ray Woods about three years ago to open the Cherokee Navarro Field. His No. 1 Ray Woods produced 84 barrels of oil per day on potential test and his No. 2 made 101 barrels per day.

He has drilled ten or a dozen wells in the field since that first one in October, 1969, and has had no failures. All the wells are shallow, producing from the Navarro around 3,000 - 3,300 feet. His No. 1 Herald Hood is believed to be his first try at drilling a deep wildcat, at least in this area, -- and apparently has discovered a new producing formation for Milam County.

5 Arrested For Burning Salem Church

Sheriff Carl Black arrested five men early Sunday morning in connection with the burning of the historic old Salem Church. The church burned completely to the ground about 2 a.m. Saturday.

Arrested and charged with arson in Justice of the Peace Jess Brock's court were Dudley Shuffield, 27, of Cameron; Benicio Bonda, 21, of Hearne; Edward Lee McIntosh, 30, of Maysfield; William H. Kensel, 22, of Tennessee; and Donny Hopson, 22, of North Carolina.

Bonda and Kensel are in the Milam County jail, the other three posted $1,000 bond each and were released from jail.

The sheriff said the men apparently were drinking when they set the fire, and were near the church when the firemen were trying to put the fire out. Hopson fell in the fire and was hospitalized overnight.

Salem Church was over 100 years old, but had not been in use for some years.

Several years ago a group of young people were fined by the sheriff for vandalizing the church. Windows were broken, the doors were torn off, and the pulpit area was also vandalized.

Accident Hurts Hearne Man

Texas Highway Patrolman Jerry Randall of Rockdale reported a one-car accident Saturday night on Highway 77. A car driven by Thomas W. Galloway of Hearne went off the road and hit a tree.

A passenger, Herbert Wilson of Hearne, was taken to Richards Hospital in Rockdale for treatment of a head injury.

Another Drought Breaker...

Ah, yes, another "drought breaker."

Monday rains meant surface ground moisture for worried farmers.

It fell steadily much of the day and toward evening.

Grass was already endangered by the lack of rain. And that problem, too, seemed staved away by the early-week rains.

We were heading for another tough situation, one that became critical the summer of 1972 until the unseasonable rains of that August broke that dryspell.

The Glucose Jelly Bean...

But Reuter says jelly beans serve a larger purpose in the cold climates of Canada.

"Jelly beans are a good source of glucose and will keep easily for a long time," Reuter correspondent Joe Will reports from Calgary, Alberta.

Other cold weather survival advice is to wear loose fitting pajama bottoms, for what it's worth. Tight-fitting pants constrict the area between the boot and parka.

Of course, you should be sure to wear something over the loose fitting pajama bottoms, like heavy pants and a windbreaker.

And fill the windbreaker's pockets with jelly beans, so the glucose can keep you warm before you drop some in your stomach.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

FIREFIGHTERS FIND A FRIEND

SEN. THOMAS McINTYRE (N.H.) ". . . There are few occupations in the United States in which the employee is asked to crawl from his slumber at 3 a.m., jump onto a rolling truck and fight a raging blaze that may take his own life and the life of his fellow workers. . .

"Firefighters face this threat each and every day of their lives.

"In some of our big city departments, men are called upon to fight as many as 20 alarms in one night's work. In rural areas volunteers from one unit often travel several miles in all kinds of weather to help a companion unit of volunteers fight a blaze. Clearly, the men who make such a contribution to our health and welfare deserve our support.

"And yet the large amounts of Federal money that have been spent on the tremendous problem of crime in the streets have not been matched by the aid specifically designed to help the firefighter. . .

"I have decided to submit an amendment to present legislation, authorizing the Department of Housing and Urban Affairs (HUD) to provide funds for our Nation's firefighting units, BOTH BIG CITY AND RURAL DEPARTMENTS.

"The funding includes an allocation for the EXPANSION OF PRESENT FACILITIES, THE CONSTRUCTION OF NEW FACILITIES AND THE AUTHORITY TO PROVIDE FUNDING TO UP DATE PRESENT EQUIPMENT. . .

"I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record a NEW YORK TIMES editorial written by a battalion chief of the New York Fire Department. (The condensed editorial follows):

(By Joseph E. Galvin)

During my firefighting career I've had the man next to me on a hose line gasp and die as he tried to advance into a burning tenement, have had a woman relieve herself as we carried her down an aerial ladder from a blazing Harlem tenement in a snowstorm.

Being a member of a ladder company given the assignment of cutting a hole in a building roof to effect ventilation so that the engine company down below can advance its line, when every enlargement of the hole allows superheated smoke and gases to blast into one's face demands the ultimate in dedication and raw guts.

I've concluded that the glue which holds this great department together is a combination of brotherhood and love. The misery, suffering and pain which we firefighters share creates a bond which those outside the fire service cannot comprehend.

Expedition Going To World's Roof

PARIS

A Franco-British Expedition, equipped with three mini-hovercraft, leaves for Nepal later this month to track down an ancient civilization on the roof of the world -- the Himalayan mountain range.

The three-man team, led by 34-year old Franch explorer Michel Peissel, plans to use the lightweight hoverboats -- fitted underneath with inflatable rubber skirts -- to glide up 600 miles of tortuous Himalayan rivers in search of Neolithic cave dwellers.

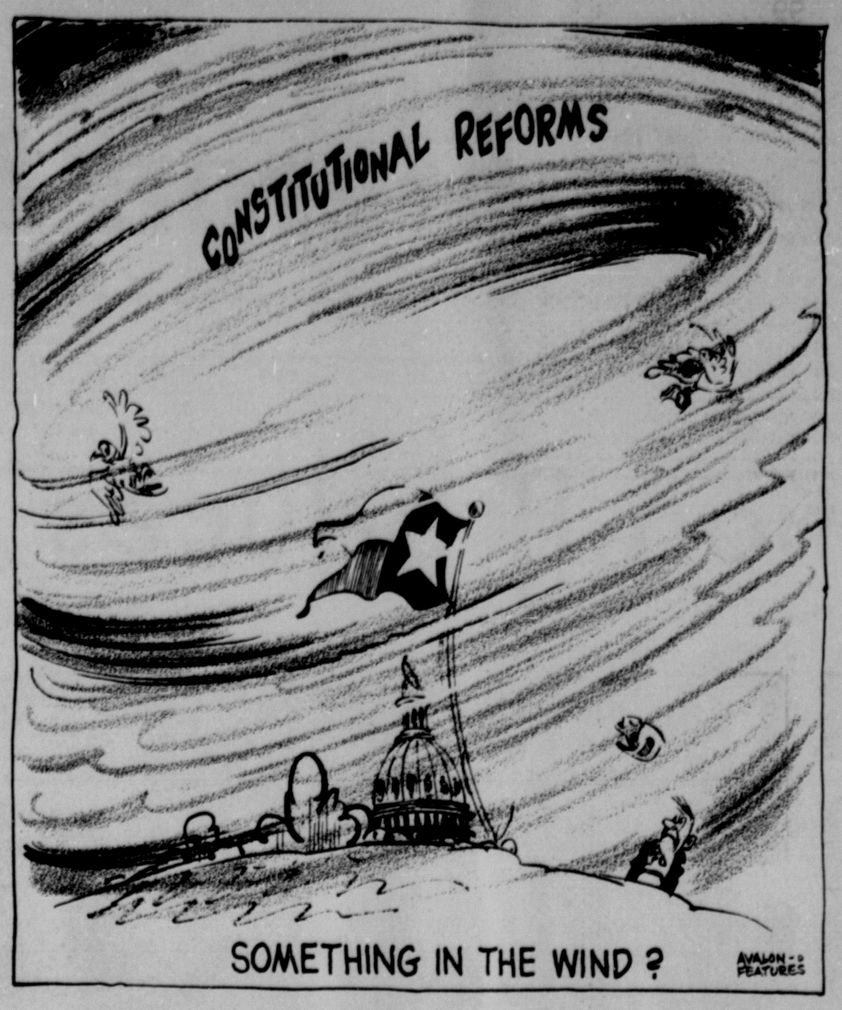
The three-month expedition that started on Feb. 26 will try to see if these caves, dotted along the river banks, will reveal proof of the existence in the fourth century A. D. of flourishing Himalayan tribes.

In 1964 Peissel discovered 29 such cave sites and with the surface-skimming hovercraft he hopes to penetrate deeper into unexplored areas to throw some light on the early Himalayan settlements. "At last we will be able to determine the exact origin of these mysterious caves," He said in a recent interview.

With 51-year old English explorer Michael Alexander and Photographer Ray Wilson, 32, he intends exploring the hitherto inaccessible Himalayan rivers of Bhutan, India and Nepal.

On certain stages of the trip the team will stay in remote Buddhist monasteries and villages whose inhabitants have never seen matches, let alone an engine-powered vehicle.

"You can imagine the surprise of the monks as they see this machine charging up the lawns of their monasteries. People in the villages all along the route are going to be very astonished indeed," Peissel said.



Improved Prices, Demands Are Aluminum's Prospects

PITTSBURGH, Pa.

Improved prices and increased demand for aluminum are in prospect for this year, shareholders of Alcoa were told in the company's annual report.

John D. Harper, chairman and chief executive officer, and W. H. Krome George, president, said--

"If demand continues to rise, as we expect it will, price should improve somewhat. In addition, continuing cost reductions should go far in keeping the benefits of growing volume from being dissipated by cost increases, which include second-year provisions of the labor contracts signed in 1971.

"As business conditions began to improve late in the year, our order level increased substantially. In December, the company has given approval by the Price Commission to make increases averaging 4.2 percent over existing ceilings which generally already were above prevailing prices. We are seeking such price improvements within these limitations as the market allows.

"We are hopeful continued market development will increase demand more rapidly than current projections for the industry."

While Alcoa had a number of "significant accomplishments" in 1971, they said the company's profit performance was "disappointing." Declines in shipments and earnings were attributed to the general effect of sluggish economies at home and abroad, "together with the specific effects of depressed aluminum prices and greatly increased costs."

Alcoa's projections and those of others in the aluminum industry show that industry over-capacity is a "probable condition" for another year or two, "although decreasing considerably from 1971," Harper and George said.

During the year, Alcoa cut back primary production and delayed completion of startup of new smelting facilities in the United States, and at Alcoa - affiliated operations in Norway and Australia. At the end of 1971, Alcoa's domestic smelters were operating at 83.1 per cent of capacity.

The adverse impact of reduced shipments at lower prices was tempered, they said, by "significant cost reductions" at virtually every plant and office of the company. Current programs and activities, they asserted, will allow Alcoa to take advantage "of the many opportunities for growth and profit that lie ahead throughout the world."

The report shows that 1971 expenditures for properties, plants and equipment were $199.4 million, 30 per cent less than the record $284.9 million spent in 1970. The 1971 expenditures were reduced from an originally projected total of $235 million as Alcoa reappraised its timetable for new facilities to meet corporate goals. Capital spending for 1972 is estimated at $162 million, with no long - term financing required during the year.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Poisoning Child's Mind

"Your father is a mean, nasty man. Stay away from him or he will whip you with a great big strap."

Laura, recently divorced, kept drumming this warning into her five-year-old son. She had been given custody of the child at the time of the divorce, and she meant to tighten her grip on him by any and all means.

Actually, her ex-husband was devoted to the boy. When he found out about Laura's tactics, he haled her into court. The judge took the matter so seriously that he changed the custody order, transferring the boy from his mother to his father.

As a general rule, the law condemns efforts by one divorced parent to poison the mind of the child against the other. It condemns "implanting in his tender mind the seeds of hate and the cankerous beginnings of malice toward those whom he should cherish."

Likewise, the law frowns on the use of the child as a pawn in financial bargaining. For example:

A divorcee constantly belittled her ex-husband to their small daughter. But she also let him know that she would stop as soon as he agreed to a large cash settlement.

Again, a court denounced her tactics and switched custody from mother to father. The court said she had no right to use the child as a kind of blackmail weapon for her own benefit.

Of course, in these highly emotional situations, it may be difficult for a court to separate fact from fiction. As a result, judges sometimes fall back on solutions that are admittedly less than perfect.

In another case, at the time of the divorce, custody of a child had been divided between husband and wife. Later, in a court hearing, each accused the other of "poisoning the child's mind against me."

After due deliberation, the court decided to leave custody just as it was—divided. Even though this meant exposing the child to parental crossfire, the court said at least it gave each parent "equal time" to defend his character.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

A man's desk, like a state capitol, ought to be cleaned out every once in a while to see what's worth keeping and what's ready to be gotten rid of.

For example, here's an item under a pile of old newspapers on my desk saying a Japanese automaker has developed a device that automatically stops the engine of a car if an intoxicated driver sits at the wheel. It's a special platinum plate at the center of the steering wheel which is highly sensitive and sends an electronic signal to switch the engine off if the driver has alcohol on his breath.

Maybe so, but has it occurred to the inventer that what this would result in is a tremendous increase in the sale of surgical face masks?

Here's another, from a politician dodging the busing issue: "Quality education is the issue. The better educated we are, the better we can live together."

That's true, except for the fact some of the biggest squabbles on record have occurred between multi-degreed professors at some of the biggest universities. I won't mention high school faculties, scientific societies, or medical conventions.

Speaking of busing, if that issue is settled, will the next issue be car-ing? You know, outlawing the use of a car to get to school. Everybody has to walk. Of course, I can see a lawsuit now claiming it's unconstitutionally unfair for a pupil living across the street from his school to get by with having to take only fifty steps while a pupil 12 blocks away has to walk a thousand times further. This could be answered by the argument that the across-the-street pupil would really not have an advantage because he would be at home doing his chores longer than the 12-blocks-away pupil, since it would take him only a couple of minutes to get to school before the bell rings.

By the way, the politicians aren't going to have much trouble in complying with the truth-in-advertising rules in this year's campaigns. There's so much scandal around that regardless of what one candidate says about another, he's likely to be telling the truth.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

THE INFORMED CONSUMER

BY CRAWFORD C. MARTIN
Attorney General of Texas

Recreational land promotions always increase during the spring as companies selling lake lots, wilderness lots, and speculative land investments begin to advertise. Direct mail promotions for local developments encourage personal visits by the whole family by offering "discounts" off the "regular" price of the lots. Some companies conduct contests while others speak of the investment potential inherent in land - particularly their land.

If you are considering the purchase of a lake lot or a small tract of land as an investment, then you should be cautious. The following guidelines are worth reading before you sign the contract:

1. Make a personal visit to the property to see for yourself the overall condition of the land, access roads improvements and the specific plot you will be purchasing. Every year thousands of people purchase land they have never seen and are often disappointed when they later visit the land development.

2. Ask the salesman for a copy of the Property Report which many land developers are required to file with the Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Washington, D. C. 20411. This report will furnish information regarding the existence of liens on the property, availability of recreational facilities availability of water service and utilities, the type of title the buyer will receive and the paved roads.

3. Determine a fair price for the land on the basis of land near the development rather than accepting at face value the salesman's claims of rapid appreciation of land values in the area. Don't fall for the "free lot" sales pitch or its companion the "discount check". These pitches are merely designed to encourage people to purchase a lot on their first visit to the development. Land developers are going to make a profit on the sale of their lots. If the development advertises a country club, golf course, boat marina, water district or other improvements which would enhance the value of the land, check on the status of these items to determine whether or not they are still in the "planning state."

In summary, the most important first step you should take before purchasing land would be to make a personal visit to the land to see for yourself what you are buying. But just as important would be to ask the right questions regarding the availability of the items necessary to insure your enjoyment of the property. If good quality drinking water is not available at an economical rate, septic tanks are not permitted, or electric power cannot be obtained at a reasonable cost, then the progress of the development may be very slow. Think about these problems before signing up for a lot in Rainbow City.

FARM and CITY

County Agent's Notes

Farmers Study Contracting

By Bill McCutchen

Many Milam County farmers are considering cotton contracting this year with some already contracted and others considering the possibilities. To contract or not to contract? This is the question with cotton producers at this time. Short supply and higher than usual prices have led to the popularity of forward contracting in 1971 and 1972.

Cotton producers traditionally have sold in the spot market. The options of forward selling and selling in the futures market have been less popular.

Some evidence of importance of forward contracts is the increase from 11 percent of the U.S. cotton crop in 1970 to 43 percent in 1971. A recent estimate by the U. S. Department of Agriculture for early contracting of the 1972 crop was 31 percent of the anticipated crop. The percentage is expected to increase sharply as planting season arrives. Contracting has been wide spread in the Texas Rio Grande Valley, during the first quarter of 1972.

The advantages of forward contracting are simply state, assured supply of quality needed by the buyer at time of harvest and a "locked in" price to the grower against which he can make farm management decisions.

Since buyers and growers are relatively inexperienced in this marketing option should give careful consideration to certain questions in order to avoid possible pitfalls.

The first question facing both buyer and seller is the domestic and foreign supply and demand situation for the foreseeable future. Adequate supply of acceptable quality will influence the buyer's action in covering fiber needs. Anticipated price movement as a result of supply and demand coupled with the growers ability to accept risk will influence his consideration of forward contracts.

Charles Baker, Extension Marketing Specialist, says that the cotton producer should ask himself the following questions before he contracts his crop:

-What does it cost me to produce, harvest, and gin cotton?

-What quality can I reasonable expect to harvest this year?

-What about other contract terms such as date of harvest, cut-off date and mutual performance bonds or escrow accounts?

Contracts are only as good as the people who make them, and no contract could be written which would give complete protection from an unscrupulous party. If the grower or buyer lacks personal knowledge of the reputation and financial standing of the other party, banks or persons with whom he has dealt can often provide information.

GRAIN IN TROUBLE

The grain sorghum picture isn't so rosy at present. Much of the planted acreage is already in trouble with moisture and replanting is a real possibility without moisture very quickly.

The marketing situation likewise does not look real good for 1972. According to national planting intentions established at the first of the year, grain sorghum growers intend to reduce their acreage by about 7 percent compared to last year. Texas and New Mexico intend to hold acreage at last years level.

Grain sorghum stocks stood at about 715 million bushels on January 1st which is not in excess of stocks at the same time for previous years. Disappearance is also about the same rate for previous years; but exports are down considerably.

Only about 18 million bushels moved abroad during the first quarter of this marketing year (October through December) as compared to 50 million bushels the year before.

John Seibert, Extension Grain Marketing Specialist says disappearance stocks are generally following the same patterns they have experienced in the last few years.

He also says that existing market conditions indicate a not very rapid, if any, increase in grain sorghum prices during the current marketing year.

The Texas Horseman

Horsemen Fight 'City Hall' And Win

By Tex Rogers

Horsemen in Texas, where 625,000 of the nation's 7.5 million horses are located, have led a big fight against 'city hall' and won.

The nemesis was the U.S. Department of Agriculture which had written regulations to implement the Horse Protection Act of 1970. The act was passed by Congress with the intent of protecting Tennessee Walking Horses from being sored, a cruel practice of making the horse's front feet sore so he will shift his weight to the hind quarters and lift his front feet quickly and high.

Although this type of cruelty is virtually limited to Walking Horses, Congress decided to include horses of all breeds used for all types of actitivies in the regulations. When the rules were finalized, just about everything that could be done on any kind of horse was covered by the law and stiff fines could result. Also, a mountain of paperwork would have been required for persons and organizations holding horse shows, playdays, cutting contests, race meets and other forms of competition on horseback.

When horsemen discovered just what the law would do to them, they acted en masse, writing or calling the USDA, congressmen and anyone else they could think of. The reaction was so strong that the USDA felt compelled to write new regulations with which the horse industry can live.

Basically, contests of speed, rodeo events, parades and trail rides have been exempted from the definition of horse show or exhibition in the new regulations. Horse shows are not required to hire veterinarians to inspect horses, but shows without them will be liable if sored horses are allowed to compete.

Record keeping requirements have been reduced so that 30-day advance notice of an event does not have to be reported to the USDA, and records of show entries must be kept only 90 days instead of one year as originally proposed.

Changing the Horse Protection Act rules can be acclaimed as a major victory for the horse industry, particularly this time of year when dozens of horse shows and rodeos are being held each weekend across Texas. Copies of the Horse Protection Act, Public Law 91-540, may be obtained by writing Dr. E.E. Saulmon, Deputy-Administrator-Veterinary Services, USDA-APHS, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Horse show time means concentrating on getting Old Blue ready to meet the competition in the arena. In pleasure classes, the winners are often separated from the losers when the judge calls for a horse to back up. Getting a horse to back up correctly may sometimes involve a real teaching job.

Lee Elbel, a noted horse trainer from New Braunfels, suggests that if all else fails, a horse needs to be driven to be taught to back up. Put a regular D snaffle bit on the horse with a martingale and drive the horse with the long reins through the stirrups of the saddle. Drive the horse several feet, and holler "whoa" when you pull up on the reins.

Let the horse stand a few minutes, Lee says, and then pull on the reins so that he will back up. This method may take a few days, until the horse's mouth gets a little sore. But pretty soon you can drive down the arena, holler "whoa," and pick up on the reins and he'll back up as straight as he can. He shouldn't give any trouble doing the same thing with a rider in the saddle.

The next few weeks will be very busy for horsemen across the state. Here's a lineup of coming shows:

MARCH 25

Angleton, Brazoria County Saddle Club playday.

Odessa, Epsilon Sigma Alpha all-youth charity horse show.

Dallas, Circle K Stock Farm Quarter Horse show, 9 a.m., Frank Gardner, judge.

MARCH 25-26

Houston, Harris County 4-H open horse show.

MARCH 26

Commerce, East Texas State University Quarter Horse show, 9:30 a.m., Jim Daniels, judge.

MARCH 29-APRIL 2

MARCH 31

Gatesville, Quarter Horse show, 9 a.m., O. H. Crew, judge.

APRIL 1

Gatesville, Appaloosa show, 9 a.m., O.H. Crew, judge.

SCREWWORM ALERT

As of March 14, 27 screwworm cases have been confirmed in Texas since January 1. Seven cases popped up March 13 and 14. Unless livestock owners take certain precautions, 1972 could be a rough year, say Screwworm Eradication Program officials. All animal wounds should be treated as soon as possible and all worm samples should be sent to Screwworm Eradication Laboratory at Mission. Containers for mailing are available at county Extension offices.

QUACK PRODUCTS

If you're in the market for plant care products, beware of materials that offer miracle cures of plant diseases and other maladies, warns Dr. Wendell Horne, Extension plant pathologist.

NEWS About 4-H

By Danny Phillips

More than 25 teams and individuals will be competing in the Milam County 4-H Food Show and Eliminations, Saturday, March 25. This year's event will be held at Simon George Hall in Cameron, with the food show getting under way at 6:30 p.m. The food show will be open for public display from 7 until 7:30 p.m.

The County Demonstrations will be held starting at 7:30 p.m. A 4-H method demonstration is a way of showing or telling the how's and why's on a subject. Examples on this might be entitled, "How to Clip a Dairy Heifer." There are hundreds of different demonstrations that can be given.

Beside the food show there will be demonstrations in civil defense, clothing educational activity, dairy cattle judging, electric demonstration, entomology contest, farm and ranch management, foods and nutrition, home improvement, horse, landscape, natural resources, pasture and forage, crops, poultry judging, public speaking, share-the-fun, tractor driving, and vegetable preparation and use demonstrations.

There are junior divisions for 4-H'ers 9 - 13 years of age by January 1 and Seniors 14 -19 by January 1.

Elimination for the judging teams have already been held. They will compete in the District 10 contest on April 8 at Texas A&M University. The other contests will be held April 15 at St. Edwards University in Austin.

4-H DAIRY PROJECTS

There seems to be a lot of interest in 4-H Dairy projects this year. Perhaps this is partly due to the fact that 4-H had 5 certificate winners at the Houston Scrambles and Judging contest. Several of the 4-H'ers have made purchases of livestock and the remainder will probably be bought very soon. In all, it looks like there may be from 7 to 10 projects in the dairy field.

A dairy project club may be formed to give further training to those interested in dairy projects. The club would learn about judging selection of animals, feeding and fitting and showing.

Return Engagement Assured

Ham has "come again" appeal. Once family appetites are satisfied with juicy, tender ham, they want it back on the table again. Fortunately, most hams obligingly provide enough meat for follow-up casseroles, salads or sandwiches.

Eggs - From Basket To Table

It's time to color Easter eggs again.

"Because white shells dye in clear, bright colors," said Houston consumer marketing specialist Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, "white shelled eggs are generally in heavy demand just before Easter."

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service specialist said that the demand sometimes pushes the price of eggs up, while some markets may feature specials in eggs for coloring.

Brown shells don't take color in quite the same way as white shells, but they do give unusual color effects.

"They're often a good buy for special decorating," Mrs. Clyatt said. "They're good for decals, transfers or fine paint brushes."

Mothers often ask whether children should eat dyed cooked eggs. A statement that the color is harmless may be found on the package containing Easter egg dyes.

"These usually are food dyes," Mrs. Clyatt said. "Though the dyed eggs are hard-cooked, it's best to eat them within a day or two."

The specialist said to remember to cook eggs for coloring just as any hard-cooked egg. Put the eggs in cold or lukewarm water and bring them to a boil. Remove from heat and let them stand for 20 minutes. Cool eggs promptly. (This makes the shells come off easily and prevents dark rings on the yolks.)

Once the kids have had their fun hiding and finding Easter eggs, you might want to use some of the eggs in these recipes.

"Again, remember to use them within a day or two from the time they were boiled," Mrs. Clyatt said.

DIFFERENT EGG SALAD

1 No. 2 can baked beans
4 coarsely chopped, hard-cooked eggs
1/2 cup minced onions
1 Tablespoon chili sauce
1 Tablespoon mayonnaise
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
3 slices crumbled crisp bacon
parsley

Drain beans; add eggs and onion. Toss in combined chili sauces, mayonnaise mustard, salt and pepper. Serve in chilled salad bowl; sprinkle with bacon and parsley. Makes four servings.

SCALLOPED EGG - SHRIMP

1 cup milk
2 Tablespoons flour
2 Tablespoons butter
4 eggs, hard-cooked
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup shrimp
1/2 cup bread crumbs

Make white sauce of butter, flour, salt and milk. In buttered casserole, place alternate thin layers of white sauce, shrimp, sliced eggs and crumbs. Brown in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) When ready to serve, garnish top with slices of eggs.

Easter Seal Group Helps Handicapped

"Do you know a handicapped person who needs help and isn't getting it?" asks William Kelm, Milam County's Easter Seal Representative, and the person to contact for services from the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas.

The Easter Seal Society offers rehabilitation services to help disabled persons and their families to find and make the most effective use of resources which will be helpful to them in developing their abilities and living more purposeful lives, he said.

This is accomplished through direct treatments, services, education, research, and cooperative efforts with all other health agencies, private, state and federal.

The Easter Seal Society is carrying out its forty-second annual Easter Seal Appeal from February 28-April 2, to finance a program of rehabilitation services for crippled children and adults. MEN'S LIB?—Matt Keane, advertising account supervisor for 1,001 Fashion & Needlecraft Ideas magazine, mans his knitting needles on a cross-country flight.

MAN-KNIT—If you can knit a simple garter stitch, you can make this handsome sweater. Black and white cotton rug yarn is knitted into four rectangles which are then sewed together to form a sweater. It's so easy even a man can do it, says our woman's editor.

In Women's Lib Counter-Revolt—

He Cottons To Knitting...

A counter-revolution to the women's lib movement is underfoot. It seems that some men believe women have been monopolizing certain fields of endeavor for much too long.

One such believer is Matt Keane, a New Yorker who's an advertising account executive for the new magazine, 1,001 Fashion & Needlecraft Ideas.

He'll tell you without dropping a stitch that women have monopolized the craft of knitting, and he's staging a one-man revolt to get his colleagues to man their knitting needles.

Keane got interested in knitting by virtue of the fact that (1) he works for a needlecraft magazine, and (2) he spends much of his time on jets flying from his New York headquarters to the Mid-West and needed something to do to pass away the time in flight.

His fellow passengers gave him a little ribbing when he first took up knitting, but that was before they saw some of his handiwork. One of his most spectacular productions is a handsome striped sweater made from black and white cotton rug yarn. The sweater is made from a simple garter stitch, which is easy to do and goes at jet speed.

If you're a beginning knitter — male or female — you might want to follow this brave fellow's lead and try your hand at making a sweater or a beach cover-up with this simple one-stitch method.

All you do is knit four rectangles and then sew them together. Two fairly small rectangles are used to form the sleeves, and larger ones are stitched together for the sweater body.

As a starter, you might try knitting a sleeveless sweater that requires only two rectangles. If you're a size 12, for instance, make each rectangle 16 inches wide and whatever length you want your sweater to be.

Sew the rectangles together on either side of the top for shoulder seams. Then stitch down each side, leaving an opening for the arms. Finish off the armholes and hem with a row of cotton fringe in matching or contrasting colors.

ONE-STITCH COTTON SWEATERS — If you can master one simple big stitch, you can create all kinds of clever tops. Knitted from cotton rug yarn, these are ideal for pulling over a swimsuit when the sun sets. To make them, you use a garter stitch and just keep on knitting rectangles. Then sew rectangles together to form sleeves, yokes, or hoods. Conso's cotton ball fringe adds dash to the sweater at left, while embroidered flower trim customizes the other. Sweaters are knitted with Aunt Lydia's heavy cotton rug yarn by American Thread.

$500 Prize Offered For Best Beef Recipe

A favorite beef-based casserole could mean $500 worth of beef for an imaginative Texas cook in the Texas Grain-Fed Beef Cook-Off to be held in Austin in May.

The Texas Department of Agriculture and the beef industry are sponsoring the "Cook-Off" which will select winning entries from each area of the State. Finals will be held in Austin Saturday, May 13.

Entrants may submit their beef-based dishes in one of three categories: casserole, gourmet, or economy dishes. Two top winners in each category in the four areas of the State will be selected, and will receive $50 each and an expenses - paid trip to Austin for the finals in the cook-off.

The grand prize will be $500 worth of beef, and the state winners in each category will receive $200 worth of beef.

The "Texas Grain-Fed Beef Cook-Off" is a part of the Texas Department of Agriculture's Texas Agricultural Products (TAP) program which is designed primarily to remind Texans and consumers everywhere of the quality, quantity and availability of Texas agricultural products.

Texas leads the nation in the number of cattle of all types, in the number of beef cattle and in the production of beef. The beef industry adds over $1.2 billion annually to the economy of Texas.

"We want more people to know more ways of preparing Texas grain-fed beef, to know about its goodness," Commissioner John C. White said. "That's one of the big reasons for the cook-off."

For more information about the cook-off and for entry blanks, contact the Texas Department of Agriculture, Austin, Texas 78711.

TAP Symbol Reaches Far

The TAP symbol, boosting Texas Agriculture Products, is rapidly becoming recognized as a boon for state farmers and ranchers, arousing admiration as well as envy in neighboring states.

Texas consumers are urged by Agriculture Commissioner John C. White to look for the symbol on products in the supermarket and "Buy Texas" when possible.

As a sales promotion, the TAP program opened entirely new export markets amounting to more than $12 million in 1971 for livestock alone. Similar successes are recorded for other products. As a result, Texas food, fiber, fruits, vegetables and livestock are now familiar sights in markets in Japan, Europe and South America -- all stemming from the TAP program initiated by Commissioner White six years ago.

But the most immediate "feed-back" has come from other states.

Apparently resigned to a philosophy of "if you can't lick 'em, join 'em", two Commissioner White asking how to begin similar programs.

DOORS OF YOE

By Marilyn Hauk

All hail the power of little red dots. Surely everyone in Yoe High who has caught the measles recently knows what a bother they can be, for they seem to be going around.

An illness of motor vehicles seems to be goin around also. Glynn Cummings, was that you pushing your car Friday?

If you ever feel like Yoe High is a cruel place, remember that there are some kind hearts. Mrs. McIntosh's Latin class placed a lost bird egg out under a tree in hopes that the mother would find it. What her fifth period English class was doing with it we'll never know.

There will be a Volleyball game in the Yoe High Gym Friday at 4:00. Let's support the Yoettes!

The night was dark and calm. All creatures were silent and leaves stood still as a lone man knelt in a garden called Gethsemane and prayed, "Not as I will, but as Thou wilt."

Around Him Jesus' disciples lay sleeping. Soon He knew would come betrayal, public condemnation and derision . . . and the long last march. And yet He prayed, "Thy will be done."

In the shadow of the Cross Jesus demonstrated perfect love and trust for God, His Father. In the hours ahead He would establish His Sonship for the atonement of all mankind.

And so today, in a world that needs this message of hope, let us commemorate that first Good Friday by acknowledging God as our Father, helping our churches to illustrate His way to the hungry, the sick, and the needy.
